- Literature Search Workshops - BA Project and Master Thesis (in Danish and English / online and on-site)

During February and March, the library offers many workshops for students writing their BA Project or Master Thesis. The workshops will teach the students to optimize their search for the most relevant articles.

A new initiative is the short online introductions to Company and Market Research databases
(only in Danish)

All the courses are on Tuesdays from 12.15-14.00. You can give them this link:

Jette would like you to remind to tell your students about the libguide Company and Market Information (in Danish and English).

Here they gain easy access to all relevant databases and access to short videos with tips for searching, <https://libguides.sdu.dk/cmi/StartHere>

If you have any questions, please write to Jette - jejo@bib.sdu.dk

Academic Writing – Library Support

The Library offers webinars on Academic Writing. The course looks at academic papers from a general point of view, but the focus is on the difference between describing materials and using these materials in an academic discussion. The webinars are “live” with possibilities to discuss the requirements of an academic paper from a general point of view.

Students are also encouraged to see the recorded webinar “Master Thesis kickstart”, where they together with the student counseling address the necessity to plan a thesis process and tips and tricks are offered on how to make realistic and necessary milestones.

If you have any questions, please write to Bjarne – bjch@sdu.dk

6. Research Presentation by Anna Schneider-Kamp, CCC
